

Abstract of the Disclosure

A pair of binoculars includes a rotating element. When the rotating element is actuated, the lens of the binoculars, which are used for focusing, are displaced. The lenses are mounted in an axially displaceable manner. A rotating movement initiated by the rotating element is translated into a rotating movement with a larger angle of rotation by means of a gear transmission stage.